

Cheap-Textbooks.com Adds More Textbook Sites To Its Price Comparison Service.

San Leandro, CA – June 15, 2009 - Cheap-Textbooks.com, one of the Internet's oldest textbook price comparison sites has expanded its price comparison tool with the addition of the textbook price feed from CampusBooks.com. "CampusBooks has one of the most extensive textbook price comparison database available. We are pleased to be able to add this information to our textbook price comparison service," says Bob Jones, Founder of Cheap-Textbooks.com. "We are constantly looking for ways to present the freshest and most accurate price information to students. This information will help students absolutely find the cheapest source for new and used textbooks."

The site reveals the lowest rental prices from the top textbook sites including Amazon Marketplace, Half.com, AbeBooks, Alibris, and over two dozen other textbook sites. All prices include shipping giving students a true picture of the total textbook cost. Students are invited to give the site a try at www.Cheap-Textbooks.com.

About Cheap-Textbooks.com: Cheap-Textbooks.com is a free service that reveals the lowest prices on new, used, eBook and rental textbooks. The original textbook price comparison tool was created in 1999 as a personal desktop application to help founder Bob Jones find the cheapest online price for textbooks while attending UC Berkeley. He distributed the applications to fellow students on floppy disk. The tool was updated to a web application and the Cheap-Textbooks.com site was launched in 2002. The site has seen many upgrades to allow it to continue to offer students a free tool to maximize their textbook savings. Loving to save money Mr. Jones has created other money saving price comparison sites including www.Lowest-Price-Online.com and www.Pet-Supplies-Cheaper.com.

About CampusBooks: CampusBooks.com is a free service that searches the Internet for the lowest prices on new and used textbooks.
